SECTION B SUMMARY WRITING (10%)

Based on the passage given, write a summary of not more than 60 words on the benefits that music offers to cure patients. Your summary must be written in one paragraph. Use your own words as far as possible and state in brackets the number of words you have written.

Nowadays, people are spending more time working and less time on leisure. This is stressful and thus, music is recommended as a great cure to the demands of life. Whether you play a favourite CD, attend concert recitals or play an instrument, music can calm even the most troubled mind.

Music has the power to soothe and calm, and to enhance or alter moods. Media advertisers and many shopping outlets exploit the power of music to attract customers. Hospitals are increasingly using music to create a peaceful atmosphere to calm patients and so, treatment can be carried out easily and with greater success.

There are two ways of using music to treat patients. One is called passive music - just listening to music. This is used to treat patients who suffer from emotional disorders such as anxiety, depression and autism. Music promotes healing through the energy of different tempos. Exposure to music can help bring the tissues and organs of the body into harmony. The other is called active music therapy. It is used mainly in the treatment of those who have difficulty in expressing themselves and relating to other people. It can help the elderly and the disabled maintain healthy mind and body coordination.

Music therapy is ideal for self-help. You can enrich your life if you spare the time to learn a musical instrument, listen to special music or choose music that accurately reflects your current mood or the mood you want to experience. For example, if you want to feel confident, listen to brisk cheerful music. If you want to feel romantic, choose something soft and melodic.

SECTION C CLOZE TEST (10%)

Each of the numbered blanks below stands for one word that has been omitted. Read the passage and then fill in each blank with one appropriate word. The first blank has been filled in for you. All answers should be written on the single-lined papers provided.

Forests are very important as they help stabilise and conserve the atmosphere that supports life on earth. Forests are some of the (0) largest, complicated and fragile ecosystems on earth. They are also our most essential renewable natural resource.

Do you ___(1)___ wonder why trees are being cut down? The ___(2)___ in which trees from a large area are being cut down, burned or damaged is ___(3)___ deforestation. Deforestation occurs ___(4)___ many ways. Rainforests are cleared for agricultural purposes, for example, to make way for the ___(5)___ of crops. Commercial logging is another common ___(6)___ of deforestation. Trees are cut for sale of timber or wood which are necessities for humans. We need paper which also comes from trees. Deforestation also occurs because of urbanisation, where large areas of land are cleared for the building of towns. Apart from ___(7)___, deforestation also occurs when flooding happens ___(8)___ to the construction of dams.

Deforestation has killed hundreds of ___(9)___ of plants and animals by destroying the habitats they have lived in and adapted to. Deforestation also ___(10)___ soil erosion, because when there are no trees, there are no roots in the ground to hold the soil in place. There is no vegetation to lessen the impact of hard rain on the soil. Consequently, the occurrence of landslides and mudslides become more common. Soil erosion also causes the silting of lakes and rivers which in turn kills aquatic life.
